HOLD FINE HALLOWEEN PARTY FOR CHILDREN OF LINCOLN EST.

Gatter School News
Carl Beck, Teacher

The pupils of the primary grades in vited those of the primary grades of Ann Rutledge to join them in a Halloween party at our school. About fifty pupils, many in very cute costumes spent the afternoon of October 26 in games, music, playground activities finishing up with apples, doughnuts and cider. One pupil of the fourth grade was heard to remark later that he did not realize how crooked two glasses of cider could make that road from our school to Highway 30. He will know better next time.

The third of our series of social activities was a party for teenagers and adults at the school, Monday night, October 28. Teachers from Ann Rutledge school were guests of honor. Of former pupils attended, and enjoyed About 200 pupils, parents and parents of former pupils attended, and enjoyed games, music dancing. We had a menagerie presided over by Dorothy Heston and Joyce Swatek suddenly emerged with a gift for telling fortunes. She was professionally known as Madam Moroni, and her booth seemed to be the main attraction for the evening. She was assisted by Dolores Gudeon who was most appropriately dressed for the occasion. A huge bonfire was built in the yard and young and old enjoyed our playground equipment. One young man, whose name we will not mention and cause him embarrassment was heard to remark he had not been on the slide since graduating, five years ago. It was reported that his fair lady rode down the slide with him. Where, oh where, was that cameraman at that time?

Prizes were given for the most unique costume, Richard Vaughn won 1st prize, Wilbur Goering second and Tommy Vaughn, third. Jerry McLain was in charge of the children's games. The party was a great success, and you kids can look forward to more of them in the future, as you all acted as grown ups and did no damage.

The affair was sponsored by men of the Subdivision and also some are brother dog house members, a new club coming up soon. The names are: J. R. Andrews, Pete Barches, Fred Stringer, Norman Bradley, Wm. Lockwood, Clarence Neidringhaus, Ray Ott and some others who donated but did not give their names.

Refreshments were served at mid night.

Visitors at the school are always welcome. Our teacher was glad to meet the parents of former pupils, and wishes them to know he appreciates the loyal support they are giving him even though their children are gone from this school.

FIRST TINLEY MAN TO ENTER SERVICE RETURNS HOME

One of Tinley Park's citizens who has been in the armed forces for the longest length of time of any who entered from Tinley Park, is Cpl. Wm. E. Burleson, of the Marines, who returned to his home in Tinley Park last Sunday after receiving a medical discharge at San Diego, Cal., October 29.

Cpl. Burleson has been in the service for five and one half years, four years of which was spent overseas. He has been a much traveled man, being in Pearl Harbor, Midway, Melbourne, Australia; New Guinea, Cape Gloucester, New Britain; Guadalcanal; Pavav, Russell Islands; Pelelu, Okinawa, Guam and Saipan.

During action in Cape Gloucester a Jap sniper's bullet hit him in the left arm and he was in a hospital for a month.

He took part in five major battles and wears the American Defense ribbon with one star, the Asiatic Southwest Pacific ribbon, Presidential Citation, Purple Heart and the Bronze Star and has been awarded a letter of commendation.

Cpl. Burleson was the first man to go into service from Tinley Park and five years ago when he left, Tinley Park was then a village of 800. Among the souvenirs which he has brought home, is a German Luger, taken from a Jap officer at Cape Gloucester. Welcome home, Bill.

TINLEY PARK DEFEATS GLENWOOD 7-0

Last Sunday afternoon Tinley Park Football team travelled to Glenwood, Ill., to play the Glenwood Manual Training School and at the end of the game the score read 7-0 in Tinley's favor. To date they have won from Chicago Heights, Midlothian, Glenwood and a game with Mt. Carmel.

The Tinley squad has scored 75 points while holding all their opponents to a total of 6 points. Sunday's game was hard fought and high lighted by good line play and fast running backs. The boys were using a new formation in the backfield and with a week's practice ahead they should really deal out some deception and trickery.

Next Sunday they play the Steger Merchants at Steger, Ill. and from all reports this should be the hardest game on their schedule.

How about some loyal support from you fans in Tinley Park, why not jump in the car and travel to Steger, Ill. Sunday, November 11 and pull for another victory so when the boys play at home November 18 at Memorial Park you can come out and give the boys a hand for having been undefeated this year.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE FRUITS OF PUBLIC WORSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 6:1-8; Ephesians 5:15-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Praise ye the Lord. I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation.—Psalm 111:1.

The center of every community should be the church. The house set aside for the worship of God is the gathering place of His people. There they find fellowship as they meet their Lord. He is in their midst exalted and mighty, but ready to enter every humble and contrite heart.

Our lesson shows us how the worship of God brings blessed results as His people meet.

I. Recognizing God's Presence (Isa. 6:1-4).

King Uzziah, who had begun well but had forgotten God, was at the end of his life a leper because of his sin and dying in disgrace. Israel which had known unprecedented prosperity under God's blessing now hardened its heart nationally against God and was also about to go into eclipse. God needed a man to speak for Him in such an hour, to bring to His people a message of judgment and also of blessed invitation. To prepare that man, the great Isaiah, God gave a remarkable manifestation of His glory and power.

It is essential that the man who speaks for God should first see the Lord high and lifted up and to hear of His holiness and glory. The negative tone of the present-day message, the lack of enthusiasm and interest in holy things, the low standards of personal holiness, the failure to preach boldly the truth regarding God's holy standards are to be explained by the fact that there has been no vision of the eternal holiness and glory of God.

II. Renewing by God's Power (v. 5-8).

To see the holiness of God is to be immediately conscious of one's own sin and unworthiness. The obvious conclusion which one draws from that fact is that anyone who is proud, who is not concerned about his own sins and the sins of his people, is living far from God and has either never known or has forgotten about His divine holiness.

Isaiah spoke of the pollution of his lips, thereby confessing that his heart was not right. Whereof the heart is full, thereof speaketh the mouth, for we read that "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh" (Matt. 12:34). Remember that even though Isaiah was a believer he recognized the need of cleansing.

"Then" (v. 6)—what an important word! When Isaiah called out in humble confession, "then" he was cleansed. The turning point is right at that place for any life. Only when we come to the place of confession and contrition which Isaiah knew, can we expect the Lord to send the cleansing fire and the enabling power.

Reformation, turning over a new leaf, character development, all commendable in their place, are not sufficient. There must be a divine cleansing of the life if there is to be a commission to service.

III. Realizing God's Will (Eph. 5: 15-17).

The ministry of the Church of God can serve no greater purpose than helping men and women to know the will of God. That wisdom (v. 17) comes through the teaching of God's Word and through the ministry of the Holy Spirit, both in the church and in the individual.

The Church (and that means every member) is to recognize that the evil day in which we live is a challenge to holy and effective living. Time is not to be wasted, or casually used. It is to be redeemed—every moment to count for God.

The walk of the believer is to be circumspect, that is, with "pains-taking attention to details, under a sense of their importance," not a foolish walk, but a wise one.

IV. Receiving God's Spirit (5:18-21).

God wishes to fill His children with the Holy Spirit in such mighty overwhelming power that they are entirely under His control. Such Spirit-filled believers find their joy and satisfaction in the fellowship of those who sing the praises of God from the heart.

Being a Christian is not a depressing, sorrowful business. It makes you glad. It is God's people who sing and make melody. Some of us who have failed to appreciate this truth should begin now to "get happy" about our religion.

The Holy Spirit leads believers into a life of humility and self-denial (v. 21). Pride and self-exaltation are definitely ruled out.

Do not neglect the note of thanksgiving found in verse 20. The Church of Christ has so infinitely much for which to be thankful that actually ingratitude is a sin. How much blessing is lost because of it! Let us "give thanks always for all things."

Surgical Starch Sponges Seen as a Possibility

There is a possibility of developing surgical sponges made of starch that can safely be sewed up in wounds because the sponge material can be absorbed by the body.

Starch sponges are made of starch paste slowly frozen and then thawed. The paste may be frozen and thawed in shallow pans and then cut into pieces of the required size and shape. A dry starch sponge is hard and somewhat brittle, but it will quickly absorb about 15 to 18 times its weight of liquid. When wet, the sponge is soft and pliable and will retain most of the liquid in it if handled gently. It has been shown that the starch dissolves in blood serum. These properties suggested use of the sponges as surgical dressings.

One of the advantages would be that wounds and incisions would not have to be reopened to remove dressings. The starch sponge would also be valuable in surface wounds, where tissues are sometimes torn when dressings are removed. The sponge might be filled with a medicinal solution, such as one of penicillin or a sulfa drug, which would be gradually released as the starch dissolves.

Vitamin A Valuable For Light Adaptation

If you want to have good dark-adaptation facilities, clear smooth skin and healthy mucous membranes, it is well to include generous amounts of vitamin A in your daily diet.

This fat-soluble vitamin has the distinction of being one of the earliest vitamins known, and it has several important functions in the body. Of major importance is its action in preventing night-blindness, which is difficulty in accommodating the eyes to changes in intensity of light. If your diet has been low in vitamin A, you may have difficulty in finding your way in the dark or in distinguishing objects when driving the car at night.

Vitamin A helps to keep the epithelial tissues healthy. These are the tissues which line the respiratory passages and the digestive and genito-urinary tracts. Adequate vitamin A helps keep the mucous membranes moist and healthy, whereas lack of vitamin A allows the passages to become dry and more susceptible to penetration by bacteria.

Control Operations Curb Threats of Predators

The taking of 118,879 predatory animals in federal - cooperative control operations carried on in 29 states during the fiscal year 1944 has resulted in the saving of thousands of sheep, calves and poultry needed to increase the production of food and wool, according to a report made by the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Despite insufficient manpower, this total represented an increase of 3,592 over the take of 115,267 predators in the preceding year, and consisted of 108,050 coyotes, 8,900 bobcats, 1,170 wolves, 592 bears and 167 mountain lions.

The greatest number of coyotes were taken in Texas — 14,756. Wyoming was second with 12,002, followed by Oregon with 10,343; Colorado, 9,832; Nevada, 9,790; Idaho, 8,800; California, 8,211; and Montana, 7,035. Of the methods used for taking predators, trapping accounted for 72,727.

From July 1, 1915, to June 30, 1944, the service reports that control operations have destroyed a total of 1,771,663 predators.

Municipal Finances Show Improvement During War

The municipal finance picture for the last year shows continued reduction of debt, excellent tax collections, capital improvements at a standstill, steady accumulation of reserves to finance public improvement programs after the war. Despite these favorable trends, municipalities generally during the year devoted considerable thought to new sources of revenue to ease the strain on the local property tax.

In this connection, collection of taxes delinquent since 1929 still is an important issue and the chief problem in hundreds of municipalities; and the many communities supplementing current tax levies with back taxes for the last six or seven years now face the necessity of living on current taxes only.

Some cities received revenues from new sources during the year, however. California and Washington communities, for example, received substantial amounts

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Over 300 patents dealing with rubber chemistry are among the 45,000 United States patents seized from aliens and nationals of occupied countries which are now available for licensing to American citizens.

Even at peak production rates, it may take eight years for manufacturers to meet the demand for new automobiles.

In five years the number of synthetic rubber passenger-car tires in this country has risen from a few thousand tires to about 35,000,000.

To combat the shock from contact with icy waters, B. F. Goodrich has produced a new synthetic rubber anti-exposure suit for fliers.

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WNU FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake of Operations was joined by his wife, Arab, who started to work with Ordinance. On a bus looking for living quarters, Arab started to write down the loose talk she overheard. She was soon spotted and a cry of "Spy" went up. Arab and Andy jumped off the bus, but Andy soon tripped, fell striking his head and woke up in bed. After telling the FBI what Arab was up to, he left the hospital and went with her to the rooming house. He got into a fight with one of the guests and met the landlady, whom he had known in Paris. Arab and Andy were convinced that something was wrong in that house. Andy then started to drive home.

CHAPTER IV

"Wait a minute," Arab said. "I want to write down my phone number for you."

Arab came back and handed me a slip of paper. "See you tomorrow night," she said.

I got in the car and drove away and forgot to look at Arab's slip of paper for several blocks. When I did, I stopped the car so fast that I almost scraped the tires down to the rims. I had almost forgotten that there was something terribly wrong with the house on Q Street.

Arab had given me a page torn from the notebook she had used on the bus. There were the absurd chicken tracks of the Arabella Blake Shorthand System. Above them she had written the translation. It was the section she had skipped when she had read her notes to me. It was the section which had brought her to the house on Q Street, and had made her a candidate for the lead story in the obituary columns.

A man on the bus had said softly to a companion, "There is a room vacant at 5797 Q Street, Northwest. It could not be helped. The girl saw too much."

I swung the car around and started back and then changed my mind. Arguing with Arab would get me nothing but a sore throat. This called for action instead of argument. For one thing, I could help her find out what was wrong with the house on Q Street.

I stopped at a drugstore and coaxed a clerk to let me look through all the Washington papers he had. I went through the preceding day's editions without finding anything. I double-checked on that day's Washington Post. Then, in the Star's rooms-for-rent section, I spotted it. Buried treasure couldn't have made me happier. The ad announced:

ROOM FOR RENT—Furnished room, bkfst. and dinner optional, in fine old house 5797 Q St., NW. Govt. girls only. Must be cultured, pref. college or bus. sch. grad. Call or write giving full details. Mrs. R. Fielding.

Apparently Renee Fielding believed in picking and choosing, and of course in wartime Washington she could get away with it. I went to the phone, dialed the Wisconsin number given in the ad, and asked for Miss Arabella Reynolds.

When I heard her voice, I growled, "Hope I didn't break up a date with Joey."

She giggled. "Were you worried? Goody."

"Not about him. Listen, how did you explain that you knew a room was vacant?"

"Why . . . why, I just said I saw an ad in the Post. Oooh, and you said tonight there wasn't any!"

"It's O. K. One was in the Star. Anybody would have thought you just got the papers mixed up." I read it to her, and added, "You must have been born with a silver horseshoe in your mouth. Suppose there hadn't been any ad?"

She said softly, "You take awfully good care of me. Thank you, Andy."

"You'd better thank me. Taking care of you is a tough job. It's like being night watchman of a TNT plant. Take it easy. Try to stay alive until lunch tomorrow, and I'll buy you one."

I didn't have much hope of getting time off the next day to hunt apartments, and it turned out that I was right. My Middle Eastern theater was getting hot, what with the British Eighth Army getting ready to tangle with Rommel at El Alamein.

It was nearly seven when I got away. I grabbed a sandwich and milk at one of the beverage bars in The Pentagon. I took a bus into Washington, remembered that I was supposed to be starting a courtship, and bought some candy and flowers. It was silly, of course. If a guy really wanted to make a hit with Arab he'd bring land mines.

Three other men were waiting in the room: a big Marine in dress blues, a Navy lieutenant (j.g.), and a civilian. We exchanged nods and I sat down. We waited. We smoked cigarettes and tried not to let our glances meet and studied our fingernails. There might be eight girls to every man in Washington, but we were being treated the way women have always treated men.

The jaycee lieutenant was claimed first. A brunette trick came in and the Navy jumped up, almost wagging himself. The Marine and civilian went off on leashes next, and finally Arab appeared and looked around and decided I'd do. I babled about how nice she looked and how I hadn't been waiting long at all and gave her the candy and flowers as hopefully as a puppy bringing a rubber ball. I guess I have no pride.

Arab took the flowers and candy, and murmured, "For me? How lovely! But of course you shouldn't have done it."

"If you feel that way," I said, "maybe I could get a refund."

"Try to get them back. Come on upstairs and I'll let you eat all the marshmallow centers and you can tell me what's wrong with the way I'm fixing the room."

We went upstairs. At the head of the steps a painted sign hung down from an old-fashioned ceiling fixture. It announced: VISITOR.

The totem pole who acted as colored maid was planted beside the door of a lighted room.

"Sadie," Arab said, "do you think I could get a vase for these lovely flowers?"

"Yes'm," Sadie admitted. She followed us into the room, and announced, "Did Mis' Fielding tell you 'bout leaving the do' open part way, Mis' Reynolds?"

"Yes, she did, Sadie."

The maid nodded and went out, leaving the door ajar eight inches. A moment later her head popped back in the opening. She stared at me, opened the door four inches wider, and vanished.

Arab looked at me and her face wrinkled in crying lines and she flung herself into my arms. Her breath came in warm little gasps against my lips. Her slim legs

I think that you will like each other.

trembled against mine. I could feel my heart rattling around like a cocktail shaker and my vertebrae playing leapfrog up and down my back.

"This isn't any easier for me than it is for you," she sobbed.

"Then let's stop this nonsense and—"

"Andy, we've got to find out what's wrong here!"

I growled, "Just for once," I said, "couldn't we find out what's right? Let's find that the body in the bathtub is only a guy who couldn't find any other place to sleep in Washington and that the plot concerns a pound of unrationed sugar and that the missing heiress eloped with 4-F Freddie."

Arab drew back and looked at me queerly. "How did you know?"

"Know what?"

"About the girl who had this room. She eloped. Three nights ago."

"Well, then there's nothing wrong. I like that girl. I never met her but I like her. Count me in on the monogrammed linen. A good sensible girl. Goes off and gets married instead of murdered. I like that girl."

"She'll need more than monogrammed linen," Arab said. "She eloped from here without taking even a toothbrush or nightie."

My stomach dropped out of formation with the rest of my insides, went into a half-loop, and then fell off in a spin. I said feebly, "Lots of girls—"

"Please listen, Andy. I want you to hear the whole story."

"Go ahead," I said gloomily. "But if this is one of those stories that ends by the teller shouting Boo we'll save time if I pass out right now."

"Well," Arab said, "her name was Paula Thompson."

"Stop it! Her name is Paula Thompson."

"All right, Paula came here last spring from Indiana. She's twenty. She'd been brought up by an aunt who died last winter. Paula worked for five months for the Office of Censorship. Off and on she had dates with a man named Bill McAdams. Nobody thought he was really interested in her."

"I get the picture," I said. "A quiet little girl. Not too attractive. Everybody watched and said, 'What can he see in her?' and made eyes at Bill."

"You have a mean nature, Andy."

Now, listen. Three nights ago they had a date. According to the official story, Bill told her he had a swell job offered him in a war plant near New Orleans, and wanted her to marry him and go along. Paula couldn't quite make up her mind. She came back here, decided she would, telephoned Bill, met him outside, and drove away. All in a few hours."

"Who's authority for the story?"

"Paula. She telephoned here from West Virginia the next morning."

"Good old Paula. I knew she'd come through. I like that girl. So now we can forget it, huh?"

Arab glared at me. "A fine detective you make," she snapped. "Always taking things at face value."

"I don't want to be a fine detective. I'm not the detective type. I got a hunch I'm more the victim type."

"Can't you see she might have been forced to make that phone call? She didn't give any information that would make her easy to trace. Just that they'd been married in a West Virginia town and to please send her things to New Orleans to Railway Express and to address any mail to General Delivery. The girls who talked with her admit she sounded very queer and strained."

I joined her at the window, and peered out. Our game was a lot of nonsense, of course, but I found my pulse shifting from second into high. I don't know what I expected to see. Something startling, probably. I was in the spirit of the game and ready for anything. Anything, that is, except what was there.

Because nothing was there.

You looked out and saw a tree. A common ordinary pin oak. Oaks don't shed their leaves early and this one was well equipped. The leaves and branches blotted out any possible view.

"What do you make of it?" Arab asked.

I growled, "She looked out and saw a Nazi parachutist on the lower branch. On the next one a gorilla was practicing nip-ups. And just above that big crotch was a raven quoting Edgar Allan Poe to beat the devil."

"Ravens," she murmured. "But that birdhouse isn't big enough for ravens."

"What birdhouse?"

"In that crotch."

It's odd how you can miss things. There was a birdhouse in the crotch. Enough starlight filtered down through the leaves to show it rather plainly. Most people would have been satisfied now, but not Arab. She got a flashlight from a bureau drawer and flicked it over the tree. The beam centered for a moment on the birdhouse, then went out.

"Did you see what I saw?" Arab asked quietly.

"Yeah. It's new. The paint isn't spotted. I saw a couple of bright nail heads. But listen, Arab, that doesn't mean anything."

"Darling, do people put up birdhouses around here in October?"

"Sure, all the best people. And furthermore—"

"Do they put them up facing north? I always understood that birds liked a southern exposure."

"These birds are different. They don't like the sun shining in and fading the wallpaper. They—"

"Andy Blake!"

I sighed. "Yes?"

"What do you see over the top of that birdhouse?"

"Nothing. Now listen, Arab—"

"You do so see something! You see the roof of the house down the street. What would happen if that birdhouse weren't there?"

"The birds would have to get out and look for a place like the rest of us. They—"

"Andy Blake, it won't do you any good to act like this. If that new birdhouse weren't there you would be looking at the second-floor windows of the house down the street. And I'll bet that crotch of the tree lines up a window like a gun sight. Somebody put up that birdhouse within the past two days. He put it up to hide the window of the next house so that, if anyone re-enacted Paula's going-to-bed routine, they wouldn't look out of the window and get suspicious of the place next door."

"The next house is fifty yards away," I objected. "What could you see that would make you dangerous to the neighbors?"

"It doesn't matter what I saw. It could have been a murder or a man in a Jap uniform or—"

"And why didn't you call the cops?"

"Because, darling, I'd have to tell the whole story over the downstairs phone. Because what I'd seen involved somebody who lives here. Because the wrong person might hear what I said. So I called good old Bill and just asked him to drive around for me and said it was awfully urgent. I was going to get him to take me to a drugstore phone or to a police station. And . . . and Bill was the wrong person."

"I don't think I like this game."

"Please, Andy, try to think. It all fits, doesn't it?"

I got outside without seeing anybody, although I could feel stares warming the back of my neck and hear twittering laughs. I walked halfway to the bus stop and then something made me turn back.

Dividend Printing

There is one kind of printing that you want—printing that pays a dividend on the investment.

A letterhead with right sort of type properly balanced is a real business asset. It wins the approval of the person receiving your letter, and while he is in this frame of mind your letter is read.

The same reasoning applies to any other job of printing. Neatness, the right weight and kind of paper, the color of the ink, the selection of the type, all play an important part in the production of dividend printing.

We are equipped to give you the kind of printing. Let us prove it to you.

THE LOW DOWN —from— HICKORY GROVE

What France does should be her own business. But when we join in, and pick up the check, after they get in a corner and holler for help, we should have a say about further help and clamp down now on more cash and food, etc., if they are determined there to be their own worst enemy and go ahead being a socialist-communist outfit. We better let 'em go—and the next time they yelp for assistance, tell them to come back next year. Like the Chinese cook told the panhandler at the back door. Do you like fish, said the Chinese. Sure says the guy. Okay then, says Mr. Chinaman, come back Friday.

Most of Europe is in a left handed sort of mess. But we here in our USA, we are the champion boob and sucker. We pay the war bills—and get an IOU and we are even toying with the same kind of government that has put Europe on the skids—we are out jump ahead with our 100 "Authorities" for this and the other thing.

We been listening to too much damp, behind the ears economic theory. And when socialism gets epidemic it sweeps you up whether you have a one chair-barber shop, or are a 1,000 acre farmer, or a plumber with only one helper.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA

PEACE...and quiet!

A lot of men who went off to fight for their country will never see their country again! They are the ones who were blinded.

Some who went away, whistling and gay will come back with shattered nerves that only expert care, and time, can mend.

And there'll be others without legs. Without arms. With broken bodies.

We can never repay these men for the sacrifices they made. But we can give them the best of medical attention. We can provide them with the best of care and pensions. And a certain measure of peace!!! and quiet.

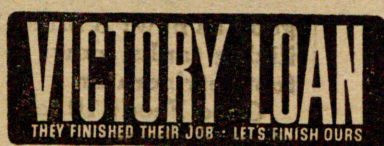

They'll get the best that can be given! And even if you can't loan the money needed for their care, someone else, perhaps, will buy the Victory Bonds you might have bought.

But you'll feel better if you buy Victory Bonds yourself. And you'll demonstrate to yourself and others that your patriotism didn't end the day the war ended.

AN IMPORTANT DATE FOR THOUSANDS OF ARMY VETERANS
NOW IN CIVILIAN LIFE

Between now and November 21, thousands of Army veterans will reenlist in Uncle Sam's new volunteer peacetime Army. Because—men who have been discharged between May 12 and November 1 of this year and reenlist on or before November 21 will be able to return to the Army with the same grade as they held when discharged.

Men with six months of satisfactory service discharged as privates will, on reenlistment before November 21, be given the grade of private first class.

Men now in the Army who apply for discharge after NOVEMBER 1 for the purpose of reenlisting in the Regular Army will also retain their present grades, if they enlist within 20 days after discharge and before FEBRUARY 1, 1946.

"BEST JOB IN THE WORLD"

These special privileges are typical of the new law recently passed by Congress. Few opportunities for a lifetime career offer as many attractive advantages.

Can you think of any other job that would give you good pay, your food, clothing, quarters, free medical and dental care, world-wide travel, 30 days furlough every year, education and training in any of nearly 200 skills or trades, and enable you to retire with a life income any time after 20 years' service?

There isn't any! That's why a job in the Regular Army has been called "The Best Job in the World."

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE NEW ENLISTMENT PROGRAM

1. Enlistments for 1½, 2 or 3 years. (1-year enlistments permitted for men with 6 months' service.)
2. Men reenlisting retain their present grades, if they reenlist within 20 days after discharge and before Feb. 1, 1946. The same applies to men discharged between May 12 and Nov. 1, 1945, who reenlist before Nov. 21, 1945.
3. An increase in the reenlistment bonus to $50 for each year of active service since the bonus was last paid, or since last entry into service.
4. 20% extra pay when overseas.
5. Paid furlough, up to 90 days, depending on length of service, with furlough travel paid to home and return, for men now in the Army who enlist.
6. Mustering-out pay (based upon length of service) to all men who are discharged to reenlist.
7. Option to retire at half pay for the rest of your life after 20 years' service—or three-quarters pay after 30 years. (Retirement income in grade of Master or First Sergeant up to $155.25 per month for life.) All previous active federal military service counts toward retirement.
8. Benefits of GI Bill of Rights.
9. Family allowances for the term of enlistment for dependents of men who enlist or reenlist before July 1, 1946.
10. Choice of branch of service and overseas theater in Air, Ground or Service Forces on 3-year enlistments.

GI'S ARE NOW MARCHING FOR HOME

Sees Mokena For First Time After Discharge From Army

When Pfc. Alfred Schrank aged 24, returned to this country in October after serving 32 months in the Pacific, he received his Welcome Home at Mokena, altho it was his first time in that village. Alfred was inducted from his home in Wisner, Neb., into the service at Ft. Cook, Omaha, Neb. on Oct. 14, 1941.

His parents Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schrank and family retired from farming after Alfred left for service, and moved to Mokena, Ill., to be near their children who live in Tinley Park.

Alfred received his basic training at Leavenworth, Kansas, Camp Walters, Texas and had two months training with the Coast Artillery guns at Camp Davis, N. Carolina and on Feb. 15, 1942 went to San Francisco, Cal. from where he sailed on Feb. 27 on the USS Republic and arrived at Hilo, Hawaii March 10, 1942.

Their duty at Hilo was protecting the air port which had been established there. They stayed here until Sept. 19, 1943 when they went to Oahu, an island of Honolulu where they joined Battery C of the 867th AAA an automatic weapon Battalion, and protected the air base on this island until July 1, 1944 when they went to Saipan on Sept. 1, 1944 and there was a B29 base which needed to be guarded.

At Saipan they saw Jap snipers often at night and one night while Alfred was on guard he shot a Jap soldier who was sneaking up to the base to get food. They left Saipan July 15, 1945 and sailed back to Oahu taking nine days to make the trip. It was Sept. 19, 1945 when Pfc. Schrank sailed from Oahu for the longed for trip back home, arriving at San Francisco Sept. 24, 1945. By train he went to Ft. Sheridan where he was given a 7 day furlough which gave him the opportunity to come to Mokena and it was more than joyful to see his parents and family again after having been in the service and away from home four years.

Alfred returned to Ft. Sheridan and on Oct. 9, 1945 he received his Honorable discharge. He wears the pre-Pearl Harbor and Asiatic Pacific ribbons with a Bronze star, the good conduct ribbon and medal, and now the honorable discharge button. The Bronze star was earned when their battery shot down a Jap plane during a raid on Saipan.

Alfred entered into the VE Day celebration at Saipan and VJ Day celebration was enjoyed at Oahu where a large parade took place. These boys heard the good news over the radio.

The battalion of which Alfred was a member, lost but one of their 150 members during the four years they served together. He was killed in action. This surely is an exceptional record.

Another unpleasant experience was when they were sailing from Oahu to Saipan. Their ship stopped at the Marshall Islands and ran into a reef at 2:00 am. and tore the bottom of the ship open. This necessitated them staying on the Marshalls a month before they got another ship when they continued to Saipan. Now those days of home sickness, anxiety, work etc. are over and home is the best place of all. Mokena welcomes Alfred Schrank.

Orland Man Given Pacific Assignment

Fifth Air Force, Tokyo—Col. Jean K. Fogle, 45, of Fair Meadow Farm, Orland Park, recently arrived in the Pacific, has been assigned to headquarters, Fifth Air Force, as an administrative staff officer and is now on duty with the occupational air force in Tokyo.

A command pilot, senior observer, and a former staff officer with the 11th Air Force in the Aleutians, in 1943 and 1944, Col. Fogle participated in raids over the Kuriles and was an original member of the "I Bombed Japan" club of Alaska long before the air forces of the Pacific began their steady hammering of the Japanese homeland.

Col. J. K. Fogle

Upon arrival in the Philippines last May, he was assigned to Far East Air Forces headquarters in Luzon after which assignment he reported to Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead's Fifth Air Force for duty, on Okinawa where he was in charge of daily surveys of the smashing air war over Japan.

On active duty in World War 1 as a second lieutenant combat instructor at Carlstrom Field, Fla., Col. Fogle has seen 11 years active service and reserve commissioned service and 16 years duty with the 108th Observation squadron of the Illinois National Guard. He is a 1918 graduate of the University of Illinois, and in 1929 and 1930 he was Financial Editor of the Chicago Daily News.

Prior to being called to active duty in February, 1941, Col. Fogle was associated with the Percy Wilson Finance Corporation, Chicago.

For his outstanding service in Alaska, he was awarded the Legion of Merit and won assignment to Washington, D. C., as chief of the analysis division in headquarters of the Army Air Forces. He also received appointment as a staff officer in the Continental Air Forces.

Colonel Fogle wears the American theatre ribbon with a campaign star and the Asiatic Pacific ribbon with a star for his Philippine service along with the Philippine Liberation ribbon with a third star.

Appreciates Home Paper

October 30, 1945.

Dear Mr. Semmler:

I just wanted to thank you for sending me the paper. I really do appreciate it and don't know how to thank you enough.

It has followed me all over the states and overseas. I always get a kick out of the news in it about all my friends.

Right now I'm sweating out a white slip of dismissal from tight Uncle Sammy. But he has outlived me I guess. This will be short but I just wanted you to know that we all do appreciate your thoughtfulness.

Local ATC Veteran Returns To U. S. After Serving Abroad With Airline

C. J. Krusemark, indicated by crayon-x above, of Truman, Minnesota, formerly of Mokena, Ill., was one of 24 Air Transport Command veterans who returned to the United States from Caribbean and South American bases last week aboard the last plane of Eastern Air Lines' Military Transport Division to land at Miami, Fla., according to information released by Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president and general manager of Eastern Air Lines, Inc.

As a member of the personnel of Eastern's Military Transport Division he helped transport 47,500,000 pounds of cargo, ranging from guns and ammunition to vital B29 Superfort parts, and 130,000 passengers from top ranking Army personnel to highly trained technicians in such planes as the big C-46 Commando transports. To haul these essential loads Eastern operated planes flew 33,480,000 miles over open ocean and uninhabited jungles.

The Military Transport Division of Eastern Air Lines, operated for the Army Air Forces, was closed October 15 after having completed its war-time assignment of flying high priority cargo and personnel to South America and Africa. Throughout its three and a half years existence, not a single scheduled flight was cancelled because of bad weather.

Since July this division of Eastern Air Lines has returned 15,000 servicemen to the United States from South Atlantic bases.

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-B
by 2nd Lt. Erlene Conel

Why Bother with a Motor? If you were at the recent CAP Victory Air show, you'll remember the glider that performed, and know what this is all about. The same type and make glider, a Schweizer two place sailplane soared into the news the other day by making a new national duration record! Paul Schweizer and Frank Hurtt, both of Almir, New York stayed aloft nine hours and 17 minutes. They broke the previous 9136 record by 51 minutes.

Fairlyland on Earth. Friday evening, after battling my way out of the overcrowded madhouse that is Municipal Airport, I stepped in a peaceful Chicago and Southern Airlines Plane. Destination: Lambert Field, St. Louis. For a change, I enjoyed being a passenger instead of a pilot. It was good to relax into the luxurious upholstery of the D-C3. Upon climbing upstairs the stewardess served a delicious hot meal. While travelling and eating, I watched one of the most beautiful dinner shows in the world: The ever-changing panorama of colorful twinkling lights. From the skyways you see only the clear bright beauty of cities. For dessert, I had peaches and cream, which could also describe the landing, it was that smooth. The entire time aloft was one hour and forty five minutes which flew by like magic.

Parks Air College: Sunday I drove about three miles S. E. of E. St. Louis to visit the famous school of the brothers Parks. Upon arrival I was surprised to find no activity. Just a sign directing flyers to Curtiss-Parks field one mile North. Parks College field is closed Sundays due to religious beliefs of President Oliver Parks.

Curtiss Parks Airport: This is the choice cross-country St. Louis landing destination for the private flyer. There are two big reasons why. The field is free of commercial plane traffic. And, its only ten minutes by bus from the heart of the city. There are other points that make this a pleasure port. Food: A big dining space offers a private dining room, tables and a counter. I questioned four people, and they all smiled their sincerity as they said the food was exceptionally good. Personal facilities: There's a big lounge with plenty of comfortable chair landing space. Washrooms and ladies powder room are clean. Plane facilities: There are four large hangers. Attendants are on hand 24 hours a day seven days a week. Complete mechanical service is offered. All service is extended with a large portion of friendliness. The young lady in the flight office, Geneva Dewey was courteous and helpful, and talking to Stine Waters of Waters Flying Service gave me some information you might find colorful. He started flying 23 years ago and soloed in a Jenny after only four hours of instruction. On his next trip he took a passenger, charging fifteen dollars cash. He now has 165 students, 50 percent of them girls.

Data for Airmen: Curtiss Parks airport is East of the Mississippi river, S. E. of downtown St. Louis. There are three concrete runways, each 100 feet wide by 1,600 feet long. Directions, N. S., N.E.S.W.; N.W.S.E.. The entire field includes 568 acres, 400 acres available for landing and takeoff. You can cross the concrete when landing. Altitude 420 feet above sea level. When wind is from N., N.W.; N.E. and West instead of making Left hand pattern approach, make Right hand approach. There are no night flying beacons or lights.

Thank you. You're letters give me a wonderful lift. Have me floating on clouds. I really appreciate it when you fly your pen over the writing paper.

Bye til next week.

Sow Farrows 25 Pigs In 9 Days

FRANKLIN, ILL.—Probably the largest one-season litter performance for a single brood sow is illustrated here by these 23 pure-bred Duroc pigs and their owner, Charles Finch, Morgan county commercial pork producer. They were farrowed recently by one sow in two litters which came nine days apart. The 23 Duroc pigs shown comprise the remainder of the double litter, two of them (one from each litter) having died soon after birth. Two nurse sows were called in to assist the original mother in raising her offspring. They have since been weaned and are now well on the way to making hogs of themselves under the careful management of Mr. Finch and Russell Denham, his herdsman.

A Proclamation

In a proclamation paying tribute to the veterans of both World Wars, Governor Dwight H. Green, proclaimed Sunday, Nov. 11, as Armistice Day throughout Illinois, and urged the appropriate celebration of the occasion.

"Armistice Day may fitly be celebrated as a day honoring all American fighting men," the Governor's proclamation said. "Its tributes may well include the youth who, in the greater war just ended, so gloriously exemplified the heroism, the devotion, and the prowess which make our republic the most powerful nation in the world, and the most secure. Their gallantry fresh thrills every patriotic heart."

As Armistice Day falls on Sunday, the day following, Monday, November 12, will be a legal holiday in Illinois.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 4, was:

"EVERLASTING PUNISHMENT"

The Golden Text was:

"Oh let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end; but establish the just" (Ps. 7: 9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Gal. 6: 7, 8).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Mortals move onward towards good or evil as time glides on. If mortals are not progressive, past failures will be repeated until all wrong work is effaced or rectified. If at present satisfied with wrong-doing, we must learn to loathe it. . . . Remember that mankind must sooner or later, either by suffering or by Science, be convinced of the error that is to be overcome" (p. 240).

THE boxer-puncher argument takes on a new form in the case of Joe Louis against Billy Conn. For in addition to being a knockout puncher, Louis was also among the better boxers. So Conn had to gamble his boxing skill and his greater speed against an opponent who could box and wreck you with either hand.

Here's the story Conn told me of their only meeting:

"When we came to the 12th round, I knew I was out in front. At last I felt sure I had a lead on points. Then a funny thing happened. The 12th round was too good for my own good. I outboxed Louis by a good margin in that round, adding to my lead. Near the close of the round I found a good opening and I nailed Louis square on the chin with a right.

Billy Conn

"I saw his eyes roll and his knees sag. I knew Joe was hurt. So all I had to do in the next three rounds was to box and keep away. I know I could have done that, for at the time Louis was a tired man. But this is where I got dumb in place of being smart. I decided I could knock Joe out. I honestly thought he was all through.

"So instead of keeping away I sailed in and started slugging with him, toe to toe. The pictures showed that. I made no effort to keep away from a fellow who could out-hit me with either hand. The great Conn wasn't willing to win a world's championship on points. He also had to be the Killer Conn.

"Well, I got what I deserved. I got knocked out. But I still figure a better boxer can handle a harder puncher, even when he is badly out-weighted. These hard punches don't like shifting, moving targets that are hard to tag."

Boxer vs. Slugger

Past records of the ring have usually shown the boxer can hold his own against the slugger. Jim Corbett proved it against John L. Sullivan, looking back some 53 years. Sullivan at the moment, however had been all through for some time, after 10 years of strong alcoholic indulgence.

What about Corbett and Fitz at Carson City? Well, don't forget that Ruby Robert could box as well as punch. Fitz in fact was a great boxer. Jack Johnson was another able boxer, one of the best.

What about Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, used as the leading example of boxer vs. puncher? They fought 20 rounds of which Tunney won at least 16—possibly more.

But don't forget that the Dempsey of Philadelphia and Chicago was far from being the Dempsey of Toledo. Seven years on top take their toll. Sam Langford was a great fighter and a great puncher. But check Old Sam's record against 139-pound Jack Blackburn, who trained Joe Louis. Blackburn told me once that in seven fights Langford had never knocked him down. "I hurt Langford as much as Sam hurt me," Blackburn said. Blackburn was a master boxer, one of the greatest. Sam Langford will tell you that.

Langford looked better against Jack Johnson and Harry Wills than he looked against Blackburn—as Blackburn explained the case some years ago.

Why Conn Wasn't in Navy

With Joe Louis in the army, why wasn't Billy Conn picked for the navy? This question has been asked more than once. This is the story we get from a high navy official. "We had Conn all set to go into the navy. This was also O. K. with Conn. At the time we figured an army-navy ring match might help out a lot in some financial war campaign. Even if this never took place, we wanted Conn in the navy. So Conn reported at a navy recruiting station. But instead of waiting in line, Billy wandered around the place. Finally a navy petty officer, not knowing who Conn was, ordered him to get in line. The order was given somewhat brusquely. It made no hit with Conn. In place of obeying the command, Conn told the petty officer what he thought of him and just where he could go. And after this Conn left the navy recruiting place and went out to enlist in the army."

This is 100 per cent Conn. Just how Billy ever got by in taking army orders is another mystery. There is nothing the Pittsburgh fighter hates worse than taking orders, or even suggestions. He wants his own way.

$80,000 a Year Men

Ruth drew an $80,000 salary one year in baseball and that figure still remains tops in the diamond game. Walter Hagen made more than $80,000 around that time, but no golfer in those days ever drew important money from tournament play.

It is all different now. Nelson is already around the $80,000 mark this year with several big money tournaments left in the South, all in the $10,000 class.

Surplus Property Sales

Sweeping revision of surplus property regulations in favor of World War II veterans has been announced by W. Stuart Symington, administrator, after a personal investigation which indicated that some disposal agencies were giving veterans "the run-around."

The changes include elimination of the $2,500 limit on preferential purchases and within reasonable amounts, there will be no limit;

Permission for a veteran entering the retail business to purchase an initial stock of goods for resale. Hitherto, under interpretation of the G. I. bill, a veteran could buy materials to establish a store, but could not obtain preference on stock for sale;

Permission for veterans to deal directly with disposal agencies such as the department of commerce and Reconstruction Finance corporation;

Special permission for veterans to buy automotive or other equipment required by his employment. It is said that few autos are available, however;

Provision that credit may be extended to veterans under terms and conditions established by the disposal agency which sells the goods. Thus, it will be possible for veterans to obtain loans from commerce department and RFC as well as the Smaller War Plants corporation. Information now is that the RFC will soon take over all disposal from the commerce department, which only recently assumed sale of consumer goods from treasury.

Questions and Answers

Q. When my twin brother entered the service he designated me beneficiary of his insurance. After a hasty marriage he made, he informed me and my parents he had not and had no intention of changing the beneficiary. After his death I was notified by the insurance department that I was his beneficiary. His wife has made some sort of claim for the insurance and has held up settlement for 16 months. Can anyone but the insured change the beneficiary or can the insurance department decide who is to get it?—J. F. K., Palo Alto, Calif.

A. No one can change the beneficiary but the insured. If you are named the beneficiary in the policy, then you are entitled to the insurance and the Veterans administration says the wife or no one else can hold it up 16 minutes. File your claim for the insurance with the Veterans administration.

Q. With reference to sale of government surplus property and the $2,500 amount sold to an individual, I am much interested in further details on this matter and any information relative to location of these surplus property boards will be much appreciated.—J. A. V., Hingham, Mont.

A. The $2,500 limit has recently been removed. Your nearest Smaller War Plants Board is at Boise, Idaho, 210 Capital Securities Bldg. Your nearest department of commerce board is at Denver, Region Nine, 1030 15th street. Suggest you write to these boards for further details.

Q. I want to know if a man 27 years old, who has been in the navy almost two years and has two kids, the oldest four years and the baby can't walk, can get a discharge on this condition soon.—Wife, Coweta, Okla.

A. No, the minimum number of navy points for enlisted personnel as of November 1 is 41 points. From your letter, your husband has only about 36 points, if he has had no overseas duty.

Q. My husband is a seaman in the navy. I have asked assistance of the Red Cross to pay my hospital bill for an operation. They said "No" and recommended the Navy Relief. I wrote them stating conditions; their answer was to loan me the money until I could work to pay it back. Wasn't I entitled to medical care?—Mrs. E. D., Taylorville, N.C.

A. The navy department says you were definitely entitled to medical care if you applied to the navy medical dispensary before your operation. Suggest you apply to the nearest medical dispensary and they will inform you as to your status.

Q. I was discharged from the navy under honorable conditions. The discharge reads, "BuPers-Bu-Med Joint Ltr." Could you please tell me what this means?—R. J. A., Hawthorne, Calif.

A. It means Bureau of Personnel-Bureau of Medics Joint Letter, the authority under which your discharge was given.

Q. Is it true if a boy enlists in the navy reserve at 17, that he is automatically released one day preceding his 21st birthday?—Mrs. E. R. M., Tule Lake, Calif.

A. The navy department says yes.

PRESIDENT IN MISSOURI

WASHINGTON. — The next two months of President Truman's life are filled with junkets similar to that which he has just taken through the heart of the Mark Twain country. At first, newsmen covering the White House figured that he took these trips for political reasons, but they have now changed their minds.

The President takes these junkets because he loves them. Never since that fateful April day when he took the oath of office has he had more fun than at Caruthersville, Mo., where he swapped yarns with the local postmaster, got up at 6:15 to "spit" in the Mississippi river, and ran out in the street to ring the bell of a small-scale locomotive.

The locomotive was being conducted through the streets of Caruthersville by the "Forty and Eight" club of the American Legion (commemorating the "40 men—8 horses" capacity of French freight cars in the last war). Suddenly the President of the United States spied it. Perhaps it reminded him of 1918 when he unloaded artillery horses from those same French freight cars in the Meuse sector.

Anyway, with a shout to War Mobilizer John Snyder, who once worked behind the cashier's cage of small-town Missouri-Arkansas banks, Harry went over to the locomotive. Right then and there the war mobilizer and the President of the United States had the time of their lives staging a locomotive bell-pulling contest.

SECRET SERVICE FROWNS

Another incident the secret service men didn't like was when the President arose shortly after 6 a. m., left the austere frame 42-room Majestic hotel which had been cleared of guests in his honor, and walked down to the Mississippi river. It seems that there is an old custom in those parts which makes it incumbent upon a visitor to spit in the Father of Waters.

The secret service men, not being in the know regarding this spitting custom, were taken by surprise. One of them, however, spotted the truant President of the United States ambling off in the direction of the river, sounded the alarm, and a few minutes later, four bodyguards were trailing him.

After Harry got through spitting, he skimmed a few stones out over the river, found that his technique as a stone-skimmer hadn't changed since boyhood days, and was then content to go back to town.

On the way, he met two old Caruthersville cronies, Nears Helm, county wholesale liquor dealer, and James Reeves, former commander of the American Legion. They swapped stories as they walked down to the post office, where they dropped in to see Postmaster Bailey S. Brooks. There they swapped some more.

BOMBS FOR CONGRESS

Six members of a congressional committee sailing to Europe last August were nearly scared out of their wits while on the Queen Mary. Headed by Rep. Louis Rabaut of Michigan, a subcommittee of the house appropriations committee had debated whether to fly or to go by boat. Finally they decided to sail—but they wished they hadn't.

The group which decided to enjoy some relaxation on steamer chairs included Dean Gillespie of Colorado, Robert Jones of Ohio, Butler Hare of South Carolina, Thomas O'Brien of Illinois and Judge John Kerr of North Carolina. Kerr had argued for the boat trip and finally convinced his colleagues.

The congressmen were just beginning to relax on their first night out from New York when an army officer came to Chairman Rabaut with a disturbing message.

"The skipper thought you gentlemen ought to know," he said, "that we have just received a code message from the FBI. They report they have discovered there are a number of incendiary bombs on the boat scheduled to go off at midnight."

"There are several companies of Japanese-American troops on board," the officer told Rabaut, "and Japan is still at war with the United States."

Rabaut called his colleagues together and told them the news. Judge Kerr's first comment was: "I wonder if the skipper has ordered airplanes to hover around the ship."

All were alerted the entire night while the ship's crew searched unsuccessfully for the bombs. No trace of them was ever found, but the restful relaxation the congressmen had hoped for was not achieved until they set foot on solid ground once again.

CAPITAL CHAFF

¶ Congratulations to Gen. Arthur Esterbrook of Santa Ana, Calif., for permitting his enlisted men to give him their gripes face to face and for speeding up discharges. If there were more generals like Esterbrook, there would be more men wanting to stay in the army.

¶ Wayne Coy, one-time Roosevelt lieutenant, now assistant publisher of the Washington Post, is a dark-horse possibility in Indiana politics. Hoosier Democrats are trying to persuade Coy to run for the senate.

Washing Woodwork

When washing woodwork, use dry suds from whipped soap jelly to prevent streaking walls. Use a strip of cardboard to protect the wall next to door frames and baseboards from getting splashed.

Celery Soup

Chopped celery tops flavor roasts, stews, bread stuffings. To make a base for cream of celery soup, combine celery tops with coarse ends of celery, cover with water and cook until soft.

Conestoga Wagon

The precursor of the great Prairie Schooner, the Conestoga wagon was a huge broad-wheeled, cloth-canopied wagon, usually drawn by six horses. Generally it was painted blue and was topped in red. It has been described as "one of the most distinctively American devices of all our transportation history." The Conestoga wagon originated among the Pennsylvania Dutch and took its name from the township in Lancaster county where they first were made. Records do not indicate definitely when they were built first but historians place it about the mid-18th century. The first turnpike road in the United States, from Philadelphia to Lancaster, over which they traveled, was opened in 1794. Occasionally they traveled independently but generally they went westward in caravans.

Good Breakfast Dish

A hearty cereal mush or porridge, which is usually served with milk, is a good main dish for breakfast. But everybody needs eggs, and if eggs are not included in other meals, have them as the main dish for breakfast several times a week. You might also serve fish once in a while. For example, creamed white fish flakes on toast, or codfish balls, or a smoked fish. The variety meats make good breakfast dishes, too—kidneys, liver or brains.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—the risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Chipped Enamel Ware

There is danger in using chipped enamelware. Now about copper. Acid foods shouldn't be cooked in copper vessels, Miss Lawrence says. And milk and foods containing saccharine shouldn't be kept in copper containers, since acids they contain may dissolve the copper. Furthermore, never fry foods in copper pans. Cooking foods in brass may not be harmful, but off-flavors may make the food impossible to eat. And incidentally, lard made in an iron pot will become rancid more quickly than lard made in steel or aluminum kettles.

Lumber Manufacturing

The lumber manufacturing industry is made up of 38,895 individual units. Several of the larger manufacturing concerns have their own research laboratories and have contributed greatly toward the solution of waste use problems, but the remainder of the mills are so small in size that they cannot undertake much, if anything, in the way of research.

Strengthen Seam

To strengthen a narrow or loosely stitched seam on an inexpensive garment--a house dress, for example--restitch seam about 1/16 inch deeper. Set machine at 14 to 16 stitches per inch. On a better garment, rip out and restitch any broken, knotty, drawn or crooked stitching. If material frays, run a row of machine stitching near the cut edges.

Building Battleships

Every time a 35,000-ton battleship is launched it takes the products from 42,000 acres of land to feed the workmen while they are building it. It takes 169 acres of tung trees to produce the oil to paint this battleship one coat. Every time this battleship fires one of its 16-inch guns, it requires one bale of American grown cotton.

Strengthens Joint

Animal glue sticks to wood because in its thin, warm solution it penetrates the pores while still fluid. When it solidifies and dries, its tremendous shrinking power draws the fibers of one piece to the other, making the joint stronger than the wood itself and of equal durability.

Women Drivers

More than 700,000 women drivers were involved in traffic accidents in 1944. It is estimated that the accident rates of men and women, based on mileage, would be equal if men drivers averaged four times as many miles as women drivers.

Retina of Eye

The retina of the eye is not fastened to the inside of the eye, except at the edges of the cornea. The retina is held in place by the pressure of the jelly-like fluid in the interior of the eye.
